Authentic Leadership

We are amid profound and revolutionary changes in the way we live and work.

Intense international competition, the explosion in information and information technology coupled with the demand for split-second responsiveness has put incredible pressures on institutions and organisations worldwide. In order to succeed organisations must be able to mobilise all of their resources.

The ability to motivate people to give their all is leadership.

To gain full engagement from their followers, leaders must be connected with their core purpose and make decisions in line with their own and their organisation's values.

In order to lead in the 21st Century we must live as Authentic Leaders

In this engaging and inspiring workshop you will learn:

- How to be an authentic leader
- How to demonstrate the four characteristics that followers want from leaders
- The importance of purpose in leading others
- How to create a vision that engages and inspires
- The secrets of confidence and courage all leaders should know

By applying your learning from this:

- Lead authentically and inspire others to do the same
- Lead from purpose
- Connect your personal values with the organisation's values and do the same for your people
- Leave people with more energy than before on a consistent basis – leading their emotional state

Authentic Leadership

About Your Facilitator

Richard works with thousands of people each year to help them to lead better, to inspire others and to be more confident. He is a best-selling author, a keynote speaker, a consultant and is the director of several businesses. His clients range from Chief Executives of billion-pound companies to elite athletes.

Your Learning Experience

Everything we do is designed with a deep understanding of how we learn as an underpinning factor. The days of ‘pour and snore’ training where delegates are on the receiving end of days and days of death by PowerPoint randomly broken up by games and awkward role-plays are long gone, for our clients at least.

Over the past decade we have been fortunate to work alongside and learn from some of the greatest minds in learning, leadership, coaching and change. As a result, the programmes we design are rich both in the content that the participants explore and also the learning experience itself.

“Thanks for an inspiring and educational time. I have already made use of it with my squad”

Ole Solskjaer – Former Manchester United footballer, Champions League Winner and manager of Molde FK

I’m delighted to see Gribson so excited, engaged and motivated after attending your programme.

It’s a pleasure to see him brimming with new perspectives, ideas and confidence.
